In 1830 Nathan Hunt laid his concern for Quaker education before the North Carolina Yearly Meeting. New Garden Boarding School—from which Guilford College grew—was the result of that concern.

In due recognition of the willing and able assistance lent in the preparation of our publication, we, the Editors, do herein wish to express our sincere appreciation to Miss Dorothy Gilbert, who, as college historian, so kindly provided the source materials for our historical motif.

To the faculties—past and present—who through their faithful guidance and inspiring leadership have served Guilford through the years . . . To the friends who through their generosity and interest have seen the college safely through her first century . . . To the students of each generation who through their loyalty and achievement have brought honor to Guilford . . . To all those to whom we owe our rich heritage with its hope of the greater Guilford of tomorrow, we, the staff of the 1937 Quaker do dedicate this book.

The Old New Garden Meeting House

F O R E W O R D

Since Guilford has set aside this year as one in which to celebrate her centennial, we feel that the theme of this year's annual should be in keeping with the occasion . . . For this reason the theme of the book is historical. Each of the division pages represents a twenty-year period and gives some of the outstanding events of those years. Our aim is to give a brief glimpse of the highlights of her past; yet however interesting may be our historical heritage, a yearbook is of necessity a condensed record of the people and events of a college year. This, too, we have tried to keep for you in these pages. . . . Such has been our two-fold purpose in the preparation of this, the 17th volume and Centennial Edition of the Quaker.

NEW GARDEN BOARDING
SCHOOL 1837

Eight Month,
First, 1837, was a momentous day for Nathan Hunt and the North Carolina

Yearly Meeting; their years of hoping and planning were rewarded—New Garden Boarding School was a reality! . . . The first student body consisted of twenty-five girls and twenty-five boys. Founders Hall, with the dining-room connected by a covered walk, comprised the physical equipment of the school, the girls and boys living entirely separated even though under the same roof. . . . Nathan Hunt's joy on that first day is preserved for us in the diary of Delilah Reynolds, one of the first students of the newly founded school. She says of the gathering that evening: "Phineas Nixon read the rules; Grandfather Hunt addressed us in a pathetic strain—a strain so pathetic that he faltered very much in trying to express the joy of his heart in beholding this so long deferred . . ."

DR. CLYDE A. MILNER
President of Guilford College Since 1934

"At this, the close of an unbroken century of educational service of Guilford College, we, the present Guilfordians, are the inheritors of a century of unselfish and loyal achievement.

"Present leaders have the same ideals and are striving to maintain the college for the same purposes as its early leaders. The founders and later administrators and directors of the college have never and do not now desire to create a large institution, but they do aspire to maintain a small liberal arts college—distinguished by the quality of the lives of its graduates and by their service and leadership."—

DR. NEREUS MENDEHALL

1861 Civil War swept the South! New Garden Boarding School was so heavily in debt that she almost closed her doors. She owes her uninterrupted existence at this critical time to Isham Cox for raising the debt; to Jonathan Cox and his wife Elizabeth for assuming the management when tuition was paid in beans, flour, cloth, and similar commodities; to Dr. Nereus Mendenhall, one of her greatest teachers for staying by the school when his own best interests lay elsewhere. . . .

Dr. Nereus Mendenhall had decided to emigrate to the West to take his family from the atmosphere of war and slavery. The trunks and boxes were packed and sent to Jamestown. Dr. Mendenhall and his family were to follow the next day. However, that morning he appeared in the schoolroom and said that it was the Lord's will that he stay and bear with New Garden in her crisis.

ORGANIZATIONS

This was an era of growth and development under the inspiring guidance of Dr. Lewis Lyndon Hobbs.

New Garden was now ready for her next great step forward. On January 25th, 1889, New Garden Boarding School passed from existence and in its stead rose Guilford College! The college owes its name to Francis T. King, whose philanthropy and unflagging interest had seen New Garden through many a financial crisis. He refused to allow the trustees to name the college for him, insisting instead that it be named for the county, but did allow them to name the first King Hall after him. . . . It was during this period that Mary Mendenhall Hobbs conceived the idea for a cooperative girl's dormitory, which later was realized in New Garden, now called Mary Hobbs Hall in her honor. . . . In 1897 the Duke brothers gave Memorial Hall in memory of their sister, Mary Elizabeth Lyon. The young college was progressing . . .

The Student Affairs Board, which functions in a supervisory capacity over all student organizations and activities at Guilford, was organized in the year 1927-28 to fill the pressing need felt for such a body on Guilford's campus.

The Board assumes complete charge of the student affairs fee of each student, and works out the budget for the entire year, apportioning funds among the college organizations as the needs of the respective organs seem most beneficial to the student life. In addition, the Board determines the eligibility of the students to hold office and participate in major campus activities, while conducting the general student election entailed in the filling of these offices. This year the Board submitted a proposal for raising the student affairs fee which was overwhelmingly accepted by the student body, and which will probably go into effect for the college year 1937-38. The Board consists of one member from each class and organization and the Faculty Committee on Student Activities.

The Women's Student Government was formed with the purpose in mind of guiding the women students and aiding in the solution of problems that arise.

The council is a representative organization elected by the women students; it consists of a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, two house presidents, and a representative of each class from each of the two women's dormitories.

The council enforces the rules that are inevitable to any well-organized and well-conducted group and thus puts all women students on an equal basis. In addition, to enforcement of regulations, the council attempts to build higher standards of conduct among women students and to foster a better feeling among them generally. When occasion demands, the women's council joins with the men's council in solving difficulties affecting both groups in general. The council is a member of the North Carolina Federation of Students, and sends representatives to that body.

The Men's Student Government of Guilford College is an organization of which each Guilford man is a member.

The President and Vice-President are elected by the men students in the spring elections and assume office at the opening of school the following fall. One representative is chosen from each dormitory and class, and the day students place one member in the group. From this body of thirteen a secretary is elected, and the entire council acts as a representative organ of the men students.

It is the purpose of the group to stimulate a high moral and social attitude among the men students of the college, with cooperation as the essential to achieve this goal.

The work done is evolutionary. It aims to bring about levels of attainment which will set a future precedent in student government programs, while relieving the faculty of direct supervision over the men of the college.

The Y. W. C. A. in cooperation with the Y. M. C. A. has attempted to discover and fill the needs of the students on the campus. To this end they sponsored political rallies to acquaint the students with the current issues of the presidential campaign, held discussion groups on campus problems, marriage, economic trends, and racial and social difficulties. On Sunday morning a class with Dr. Beittel as presiding leader was held. Monthly vespers featuring outstanding speakers and assisted by the A Capella Choir were also a part of the extensive program.

An innovation in the student life of the campus was fostered by the joint "Y's" during the past year when the faculty home sessions were initiated. Each faculty member opened his home to college students on consecutive Sunday evenings with discussions on varied topics led by the faculty member presiding. In this way a closer union between students and faculty was cemented, and greater cooperation on campus topics attained.

During the past year the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. cooperated jointly in campus Christian activities. Both cabinets recognized the need for united student movement and worked definitely toward this goal. The main issue at hand has been to make student life at Guilford more meaningful, and with this in mind the joint cabinets adjusted their program.

Joint activities included the following: a series of evenings at faculty homes which brought the student body and the faculty in closer touch with one another; a Sunday morning service conducted by Dr. Beittel; a group of Sunday vespers with the college A Capella Choir assisting.

The regular "Y" nights were expanded to include not only discussions of international topics, but also consideration of campus problems, and expression of views on economic and political questions of the day. A series of political rallies preceding the national elections gave students an opportunity to gain keener insight into national political organization, while the social campaign of the group was waged with hikes and stag parties, promoted for the enjoyment of the entire student body.

The production of the college annual, THE QUAKER, probably demands more ability along technical line than any other student office on the campus.

Accordingly there is a small group which concentrates its activities on the make-up and publication of the year book. They wish to express their appreciation to the student body for its co-operation in the work and hope that the result will meet with their approval.

At this time the staff of the Quaker wishes to acknowledge all the assistance lent by students, printer, engraver, and photographer, which group displayed such fine cooperation in the preparation and final issue of the book.

Prominent among Guilford's publications is the Guilfordian, a bi-weekly newspaper of, by and for the student body. The completion of this year's schedule marked the paper's twenty-third year of publication, and its second as a member of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association. A file of Guilfordians maintained by the college provides an excellent source for contemporary history.

The activity of the business staff has made the past season a notable one in the history of the college news organ. It was this activity that enabled the paper to expand into six columns for the first time. An enlivened editorial policy was characteristic of the year's editions, as were the several warmly-waged campus controversies conducted through the Open Forum column, the policy of which was to print everything submitted provided it was decent, brief, and free from unpleasant personalities. The Gristmill and the widely-read Minute Man were also popular features of the journal.

Organized dramatic activity on the Guilford College campus is carried on by the Dramatic Council, which was formed in 1921 to provide for student participation in the presentation of plays. Although members of the council were originally elected by the "Y" groups, membership in recent years has been confined to students earning points by acting in plays and assisting in their production.

Regular meetings of the council are held monthly and special sessions are held when necessary; in addition, an extensive social program featuring the discussions of modern plays is carried on.

This year's fall play was a revival of Icebound, which was successfully presented at Guilford in 1928. A noteworthy feature of the presentation was the use of two casts for the first time at Guilford, which innovation was enthusiastically received by both audiences.

Debating on the Guilford campus was given impetus during the year 1935-36, and the past year of 1936-37 gave even more prestige to the efforts of the college orators.

Throughout the year the Council was active, sponsoring among its many activities class debates, and taking over chapel periods for debating sessions.

Special attention was concentrated on the South Atlantic Forensic Tournament held at Rock Hill, South Carolina, in the early spring. Here the varsity debating teams met representatives from colleges ranging from Pennsylvania to Georgia, and engaged in impromptu speaking contests held under the auspices of the same tournament.

The activities of the year were closed with the local Peace Oratorical Contests. The winner of this contest was sent to the State Peace Oratorical Contest on April 24th and competed with other winners in an effort to take first prize.

THE CHOIR

The Guilford College Choir, whose reputation has been established by its excellent work during eight previous years, has, in its ninth season met with continued success. Dr. Ezra H. F. Weis, who has finished his second year as director of the choir, has worked for perfect balance and tonal quality in the music sung by the choir. With the help of Mrs. Harvey A. Ljung he has maintained the choir's excellence in a capella singing.

A record group of about eighty students sang this year with the choir. These students represented nine states, namely: North Carolina, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Maryland, Virginia, Connecticut, Vermont, Texas, and Ohio.

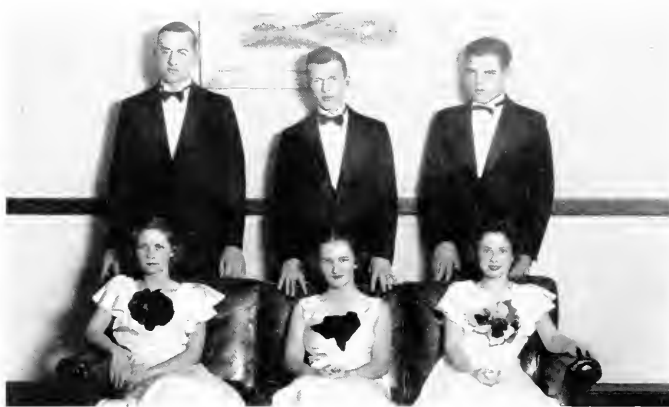

The sixth annual choir tour, shortened by the vacation period, took the choir North as far as Salem, N. J. The choir sang at Shiloh, N. J., as part of the 200th anniversary of the Baptist Church there. The choir broadcast over the Columbia network from Washington, D. C. An outstanding concert was given to the very critical audience at Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va. The choir has continued to reveal the friendliness, thoroughness, and sincerity which permeate the organizations, customs, and traditions of the college.

Concerts have been given by the choir this year in Danville, Va., Shiloh, N. J., Salem, N. J., Washington, D. C., Greenville, N. C., Southern Pines, N. C., Sanford, N. C., Greensboro, N. C., High Point, N. C., and many other places.

BASEBALL GAME OF THE PERIOD

These years mark a period of great achievement in Guilford's Athletics—her greatest honors being in the field of baseball. They played good ball in those days under the direction of Bob Doak, who served long and faithfully as coach. His brother, Charles B. Doak, who coached at Guilford from 1911 to 1914, says of the Guilford Community, in his book on baseball: "Perhaps no one community and no one college has sent into the ranks of professional baseball a larger number of players." We can very well believe this when we read over the list of those who have played in major league clubs, including such men as Lucien W. Smith, Ernest Shore, Tom Murchison, W. G. Lindsey, Rick Ferrell, Luke Stuart, Stuart Martin and Tom Zachary. Some twenty more, while not playing in the major leagues, have found their way into the ranks of professional ball.

THE SEASON

The 1936 football season of the Quakers, though not one covered with the glory of victory, was one covered with the halo of student and team spirit. The Crimson, under the tutelage of Coach Harry Hodges, who came to Guilford from a successful coaching regime at Oak Ridge Military Academy, developed a light, fast team which battled through a tough schedule of nine games to win two and drop seven. Coach Hodges brought a wealth of material with him from the Ridge which combined with the veterans of the '35 Quaker team to strengthen Guilford's hopes for a winning team. Brinkley and McInnis, both from the Ridge, stepped into varsity backfield and line posts respectively to give a good account of themselves throughout the entire nine games played.

Coach HODGES; Captain TILSON

In the first game of the year Guilford took a lacing from a powerful Roanoke eleven by a 33 to 0 score. Under a new coach and playing against a team already well into the middle of its season, the odds were too one-sided, and the Quakers were overwhelmed by a first half onslaught. The second half, however, found Guilford pulling the same stunt which they were to pull during many subsequent games; they fought the Maroons scoreless during the entire second half of the game.

The second contest of the season was on home territory and afforded the student body an opportunity to watch the varsity cavort for the first time on Hobbs Field. Although doped beforehand to win by a slight margin, the Randolph-Macon Yellow Jackets pulled an upset when they held the Quakers scoreless while piling up a substantial margin of 26 points themselves. Brinkley teamed up with Captain Charlie Tilson for the Quakers to display a formidable passing attack, and Eldridge, who was seen in action for the first time at the pivot post showed his all-round ability as a defensive and offensive center.

On the following week-end the squad journeyed to Boone, where they gave battle to the teachers of Appalachian State College. The final October 14th found Guilford facing a far superior eleven at Williamsburg, Virginia. The gridders from William and Mary in the Old Dominion State failed, however, to pile up the victory margin that had been accumulated over the Crimson the week before and won by a 38 to 0 margin. The Quaker lineup for the first time in the season displayed a really commendable brand of gridiron warfare and shone in defeat. Acree, Quaker halfback, booted the pigskin deep into enemy territory repeatedly and kept the Virginia outfit on its toes during the entire first period of play. McDonald and Sadler, teaming up at the tackle posts, put the Royalists back on their heels continually with their brilliant defensive play.

The Quakers travelled to Salisbury to assist in the dedicating of the new stadium erected for the Catawba Indians, but despite their particiwhistle found the Quakers on the wrong end of a 52 to 0 score after they had battled unsuccessfully with five complete teacher teams. The Teachers had prepared well for the Quakers; they had laid out a miniature Flanders Field and were ready to pronounce the last sad rites over the Guilfordians, but were disappointed when the end of the game found the Quakers still very much alive and battling for all they were worth.

pating in the dedicatory rites, the Redskins jumped on them and took their scalps to the tune of 26 to 0. The outstanding play of the game found Chambers recovering a fumble and following it up by leading the Crimson and Gray down to the five-yard stripe where the Tribesmen gained possession of the pigskin by a return fumble. "G-man" Boles turned in a fine performance on the Quaker forward wall during the game by breaking up Catawba running plays all afternoon.

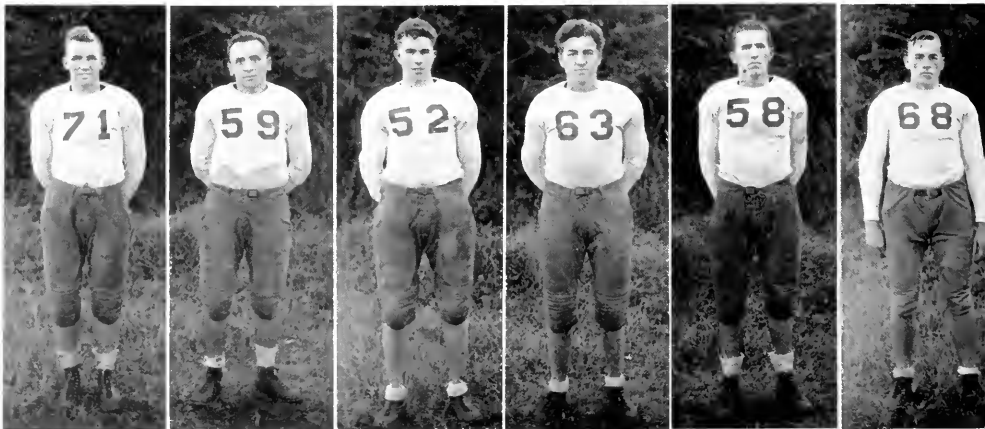

MANAGER BRADSHAW

In meeting Lenoir-Rhyne at Hickory, the Quakers repeated their performance of a year ago in the same stadium and lost to the Bears although outplaying them in every department of the game throughout the entire sixty minutes of play. Bill McInnis, who had been out of the lineup during the games following the Randolph-Macon fray because of a broken finger, returned to the Quaker forward wall once more and combined with Boles and Byrd to romp around in the Bear backfield at random during most of the evening. Jay Brinkley, holding down his halfback post, played a brilliant running game, ripping through big holes in the Bruin front line at will to pile up yardage for the Quakers. Acree, doing all the punting, again turned in his usual fine toe performance by keeping the Lenoir-Rhyneans at bay with his high-soaring punts.

The homecoming day scrap on Hobbs Field was Guilford's great day on the gridiron for the first time during the 1936 season. The squad from Bridgewater College in Virginia furnished the Quaker opposition before a large crowd of students and returning alumni and were downed by a 20 to 13 tally as the Crimson played marvelous football both offensively and defensively to come out on top. Cliff Fox, who broke into the Quaker lineup for the first time since his return to school proved to be a real powerhouse in every department—kicking, running, and passing. He smashed through the Bridgewater line for big gains all afternoon, and playing at the fullback post, he backed up the line like a Trojan. Capella, Ragan, and Joe McCommons also turned in meritorious performances both offensively and defensively and were largely instrumental in the Quaker win.

Another week saw the team repeating itself by defeating Eastern Carolina Teachers College on our home field. Although the Crimson gained almost twice as much ground as the Pirates, they could just scrape out a 6 to 0 victory over the invaders. With a forward wall that formed a virtual battering ram for the backs, the Quakers broke through for big gains continually. Two freshmen, Lentz and Cipo, broke into the football limelight for the first time at Guilford by their fine performances in the Crimson backfield.

The final appearance of the 1936 edition of Crimson and Gray football evens was in the catastrophic Elon tilt which the Christians took by a 39 to 0 margin. Although Coach Hodges used two complete backfields, neither could stem the Elon tide or gain ground through the stalwart Christian forward wall, and another bitter defeat was doled out to the Quakers by their keenest gridiron rivals. The Elon gridders, led by the crushing drives of Abbitt, Christian fullback, drove through the forward wall almost at will, and stopped the Quaker backs at the line of scrimmage on running plays while succeeding in breaking up the Crimson passing offense with little difficulty.

In answer to the call for basketball players last December five lettermen from last year's varsity reported, one of whom dropped out after a short time on the squad. As the rest of the material reporting for the court sessions was either inexperienced material or freshman talent, it was left to Coach Hodges to do a considerable amount of experimenting before he found a combination that worked at all well. Out of the group of new recruits there were a few which quickly proved to be of sufficiently high calibre to hold down berths on the varsity squad, these being Lentz, Fox, Hartley, and Paul Hockett.

In games won the season was a failure, since the lone victory on the court came at the expense of E. C. T. C. at Guilford, when the teachers dropped a game to the home basketeers by a 44 to 36 score.

There were many times during the season when the Quakers showed the fight and basketball ability which pulled them up on far superior teams. Their last game with Catawba found the Crimson fighting neck and neck with the Redskins for four quarters of hard-fought basketball, only to be nosed out in the last few minutes of play when the long-range shooting Indian guards dropped shots in from the back court.

During most of the games the starting lineup consisted of Captain McCommons at center, Boles and Hartley at the forward posts, and Lentz and Overman holding down the guard positions. McCommons, Overman and Boles are veterans from last year's team, but Lentz and Hartley are both freshman recruits from Albemarle and High Point respectively. "Snag" Hartley lived up to his high school reputation as a courtman and proved more and more valuable to the team as the season advanced. Lentz played a bang-up game at guard throughout the season, was one of the few men who could consistently recover the ball from the backboards and carry it safely out of enemy territory.

The end of the season found Overman in high scoring position with some 150 points to his credit, while Boles trailed him by some few points.

CROSS COUNTRY

Building on to the strong reputation won during the two preceding seasons of 1934 and 1935, the Quaker harriers again earned athletic laurels for Guilford in 1936 in winning four out of their five scheduled cross country meets.

Starting out with a nucleus of three lettermen from the 1935 squad, Captain Paul Hockett, aided by Warren Bowers in the capacity of coach, turned out a strong squad which came through with easy victories over Randolph-Macon, North Carolina State, and the Reserves of the University of North Carolina.

Only one rival managed to overturn the string of Crimson wins—Davidson nosing out the Quakers by a one-point margin in the second meet of the year.

Captain Hockett, Bowers, and Meibohm were the monogram men from last year on the team, and the other positions were taken by Davis, a reserve from last year, and Alexander and Morris—both freshmen. Meibohm, who took first in every meet but one, will captain the Quakers during the 1937 season.

TRACK SEASON

The 1937 track season thus far has found Coach Shepard putting one of his strongest teams in recent years on the cinderpaths to represent the Quakers. With a powerful nucleus of veterans back in the fold and with a strong group of newcomers showing up in impressive fashion, the Crimson promises to give Guilford something to talk of in the spring sports program.

To date the locals have had two meets—a dual meet with Wake Forest, which the latter won, and a triangular meet with Catawba and Hampden-Sydney, which found the Quakers bringing up in second place, due to a pronounced weakness in the field events. The team has shown power enough in the running events to take over more than its share of the foot events, but has fallen short in the field trials. Lentz, Cipo, and Hester have been consistent winners in the dashes. Ragan and Meibohm have been performing superbly in the quarter, while Hodgkin, McCommons, and Hester have handled the hurdling. Meibohm and Alexander can both turn out a half mile in a little over two minutes, and Bowers, Gilliam, Lindley, and Alexander are sure bets in the longer distances.

McCommons, in addition, has turned into a first-class high jumper, reaching well up toward the six-foot mark. Hodgkin and Hester have been turning in fair performances with the javelin and discus, but the pole vault, broad jump and shot put have been the main weakness when the points are totalled.

With an even stronger team than last year's, which turned two wins against two losses, the Crimson this year are counted upon to turn out a track team to give Guilford something to boast about in spring sports.

Hartley, Lentz, Poole, Higgins, Phillips, Archer, Ragan, Morris, Sadler

BASEBALL

The 1936 Quaker baseball team, under the tutelage of Coach Anderson, enjoyed a fairly successful season on the diamond, winning twelve out of twenty-two games. A few of the losses were incurred by the bare margin of one run, the two Elon contests being shining examples of this when the Quakers went down 2 to 1 and 1 to 0.

The northern trip was a brilliant success for the Quakers. They came through with five victories out of six games played, knocking out wins over such teams as Georgetown University, Bridgewater College, the Quantico Marines, Swarthmore College, and suffering their lone loss at the hands of Haverford. The trip was featured by the two outstanding hurling performances of Swaim and Acree, who both turned in perfect games from the mound by pitching no-hit no-run games against Bridgewater College and the Quantico Marines.

Swaim led the Quaker tossers in wins from the mound, while Weston was in second place, closely followed by Higgins. Boyles, varsity catcher, led the Quakers at bat with an average of .358 for the season, and was closely followed by Capella with an average of .350. Acree, Carroll, Kyle, and Weston also turned in batting averages above the .300 mark.

Between forty and fifty candidates reported for the 1937 squad under the coaching of Harry Hodges, but Coach Hodges was faced with the serious problem of filling in-field gaps left by graduating players. To date the 1937 squad has won one game while losing three, but the club is showing improvement and should register a good margin of wins before the season closes.

Bowman, Ritchie, Newkirk, Parsons

TENNIS

The 1937 tennis season finds three Quaker lettermen returning to the Crimson net fold to enter again into competition for North State Conference tennis laurels. With three varsity monogram winners from the 1936 squad returned to school, and with two promising newcomers to the squad displaying varsity promise, the netmen are looking forward to building a winning team around the nucleus of lettermen.

Captain Newkirk, Jim Parsons, and Manager J. D. Bowman are the seasoned men on hand, but the remaining two posts are still open, although at this writing, Gregg Ritchie and Howard Petrea seem the two men most likely to step in and fill the vacancies.

The lineup for this year's matches will probably find Newkirk, Parsons, and Bowman handling the singles contests, while the doubles teams will have Newkirk and Parsons teaming up at the number one post, and Bowman and Petrea combining for the number two aggregation.

Last year's slate was confined entirely to interstate and intrastate matches, but this year the team has scheduled a northern trip and will combat such teams as those representing Georgetown University, Lynchburg College, and Staunton Military Academy; which trip should put them into excellent shape for the North State Conference matches themselves.

Faced with a lack of courts and with little tennis equipment to utilize, the Guilford tennis team is to be congratulated on the showing it has made during the past two or three years, and the school is indebted to the interest shown by the members in scheduling their own matches and working almost entirely on their own initiative.

The Association, inspired to new activity through the coming of Mrs. Catherine Hodges as director of Physical Education, acquired a room of its own, located on the third floor of Founders. The members of the Council have made plans for decorating and hope to have the work finished during the year.

FEATURES

1917-1937

The emphasis in the last two decades has been on the deepening and enriching of the intellectual life of the college. Between 1918 and 1926, the endowment was raised from less than $200,000 to $555,000 in two strenuous campaigns undertaken by Dr. Binford in which he was assisted by Dr. Hobbs and Dr. Perisho. In 1926 Guilford was admitted to the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and within the next few years the curriculum was revised and strengthened. Guilford owes progress in both her financial and her educational program to the staunch leadership of Dr. Raymond Binford. . . . In 1934 Dr. Clyde A. Milner became president; his administration so far has centered in the centennial program, for this year Guilford celebrates the one hundredth anniversary of her opening. She faces a new century in hope, and in faith—confident in leader and in purpose . . .

POTENT POETRY

(With apologies to Kipling)

When earth's last picture is painted,
And the tubes have twisted and dried,
Carrots will be served at Founders,
And the pancakes won't be fried.

When ice cream grows on spaghetti trees,
And the desert sands are muddy,
When cats and dogs wear overshoes,
That's when I'm going to study.

Little Jack Horner sat in the corner,
The dumb dope.

Epitaph for Seniors
"Thesis, Nemesis, Deceasis."

1st Freshman—What would your chaperon say if she saw you smoking that cigarette?

2nd Frosh—She'd blow up. They're her cigarettes.

Mrs. Milner—Is there anything you can do better than anybody else?

H. Nau—Sure! Read my own writing.

Maloney—What did Gloria do when you told her you liked to drive with one hand?

J. Ryan—She gave me an apple.

Many students have asked about it. Here it is:

The sex area.
